

SAVE — THE — DATE

3rd Annual Sickle Cell Disease Education Symposium:

100 Years of Sickle Cell Disease
Research: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow

Date: September 13, 2010

Time: 6:45 - 8:00 pm

Where: Georgia State University,
Student Center, Speakers Auditorium

Public Welcome

The evening will include presentations from a historian that will provide an overview of sickle cell disease (SCD) over the past century, an advocate to discuss the importance of knowing about SCD today and a community leader to discuss the future of SCD from a community based organization perspective. In addition to providing a forum to inform patients, families, community leaders, and health care providers about the public health impact of SCD, the goal of the symposium is to promote community engagement and advocacy.

For more information about the event please contact
Kai Stewart at KASTewart@cdc.gov

*Advanced registration is required- no fee
See final announcement for details on registration process.*

National Center on Birth Defects and Developmental Disabilities
Office of the Director

